

WS Directive

4.102 05/22/06

ALTERNATE DUTY LOCATION

1. PURPOSE

To outline policy for a change in official duty station (alternate duty location) assignments for Wildlife Services personnel.

2. REPLACEMENT HIGHLIGHTS

This is a new directive.

3. BACKGROUND

Wildlife Services strongly supports policies that allow for the appropriate balance between a family-friendly workplace and an environment focused on mission-related results and cost-efficiency. Under exceptional circumstances, Wildlife Services may permit the designation of a change in duty station to an alternate duty location to accommodate employee needs. This Directive establishes the criteria that will apply in the very rare instances that Wildlife Services will allow such a change in an employee's official duty station. This Directive is not intended to allow employees to select individual duty stations.

4. POLICY

The term "change in official duty station (alternate duty location)" means that an employee's official work station is changed from the geographic location traditionally associated with his/her job to a new location. Locations for duty stations are a management decision and are determined in a manner which promotes the efficiency of the program, does not impact customer service, and is fair and equitable to employees. Alternate duty locations may be arranged at (in descending order of preference) other established Wildlife Services offices, co-location sites with other USDA facilities, through agreements with other Federal, State, or local agencies, as selected by the supervisor. Arrangements for these alternate duty location sites will be determined through a collaborative effort among involved Wildlife Services staff, and/or other USDA office managers, where appropriate. This Directive addresses those changes in duty station that are based on an individual's request to accommodate a personal situation. This Directive does not cover directed reassignments or other administratively determined changes in duty station.

5. ELIGIBILITY

Wildlife Services supervisors may recommend alternate duty locations for non-supervisory employees who have demonstrated the ability and practice of working without direct supervision, occupy positions which can be executed successfully from remote sites using standard government business practices, and who meet the criteria (outlined below). Concurrence by the appropriate Director (Regional, National Wildlife Research Center, or Operational Support Staff), and approval by the Deputy Administrator is required to make these assignments.

This Directive does not apply to:

- a. Participants in the Flexiplace Program (Telework Program; WS Directive 4.103), who are required to alternate days between their official duty station and their private residence and/or Agency designated satellite area in their local area.
- b. Field Employees, whose private residence is their duty station. These employees are often in the field traveling from various locations to perform their duties and work out of their homes to prepare reports, correspondence, receive messages, etc., and do not report to a federally owned or leased facility.

6. PROCEDURES AND CRITERIA

Requests will be considered on a case-by-case basis and critical factors will be evaluated relative to benefits to be derived by the program and fairness to the Wildlife Services employee under consideration.

- a. Requests for a change in duty station must be documented with:

1. Written justification which includes:

- (i). Mission-related benefit(s) to Wildlife Services.
- (ii). Cost-benefit analysis (including travel expenses, equipment, etc.)
- (iii). Supervisor's certification and written justification that the position is a demonstrated hard-to-fill position, and the employee has unique knowledge, skills, or abilities related primarily to assigned duties which constitute highly valuable assets critical to the Agency's mission.
- (iv). Supervisor's certification that the duties of the position are portable and that changing the employee's duty station will not adversely affect other employees.
- (v). A statement that procedures are in place for monitoring the employee's work assignments.

(vi). A fully successful or better prior year Performance Rating.

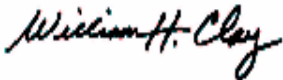

2. Memorandum of Understanding (Attachment 1) signed by the employee, his/her supervisor, the appropriate Director (Regional, National Wildlife Research Center, or Operational Support Staff), and the Deputy Administrator.

b. Requests must be recommended by the employee's supervisor (submitting the request), with concurrence of the appropriate Director (Regional, National Wildlife Research Center, or Operational Support Staff) prior to being submitted to the Deputy Administrator for final approval. The Deputy Administrator will return the packet and the decision down the chain of command to the employee's supervisor. The employee's supervisor will forward the packet to the Servicing Personnel Office, if approved.

c. SF-52, Request for Personnel Action will be processed after approvals are received.

d. The employee assumes all costs of the move to and from the duty station.

Supervisors will assess the effectiveness of the arrangement during performance reviews to ensure that organizational needs are being met. If a determination is made that organizational needs are not being met, the arrangement will be terminated. All requests which are approved must be resubmitted annually to the Deputy Administrator to ensure the criteria continue to be met. Employees are advised to consider the requirement as they plan living arrangements at the location. The Agency will have no liability and will not pay any costs, such as the purchase or rental of housing or educational expenses, should the employee be required to return to the traditional or original duty location.
